

INTRODUCTION TO THE CIO ADVISORY BOARD

As Jeanne Ross noted in her Editor's Comments at the beginning of this issue, MISQE has initiated a "CIO Advisory Board." Currently, the Board consists of the 13 members listed. We plan to enlarge the size to roughly 20.

In addition to providing advice to the editors, this Board will comment on previous articles or articles in the current issue. While our authors are practitioner-oriented, we trust that these comments from the Advisory Board will add richness and depth to the articles they discuss.

There is no particular format for these responses. Some Advisory Board members may respond directly to an article, or to pieces of it (as Chris Curran does here). Others may provide their perspectives on the subject of the article without referring directly to it. And there probably will be other formats. Whatever the format, the purpose is to add to readers' knowledge of IT issues.

Jack Rockhart

jrockhart@mit.edu

CIO ADVISORY BOARD

Robert N. Barrett

CIO
Babcock Power Inc.

Chris Curran

Chief Technology Officer and Partner
Diamond Management and Technology Consultants

Ted DellaVecchia

Senior Vice President, CIO
CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield

Steve Finnerty

Vice President IT Strategy & Planning
Applied Materials

Leo P. Gilmore Sr.

VP Information Services
Lancaster General Health System

Darwin A. John

Former CIO
Federal Bureau of Investigation and
The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints

Dinesh Kumar

Services Architect
Microsoft

Charles Rieger

Program Director
Americas Group Base Growth and Value Creation
IBM Global Technology Services

Stuart Scantlebury

Former Vice President and Director (retired)
The Boston Consulting Group

Patricia C. Skarulis

Vice President and CIO
Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center

Ed Trainor

CIO,
National Railroad Passenger Corp

John G. Stevenson

President,
JG Stevenson Associates LLC
and Former CIO of Sharp Electronics

Phillip R. Zweg

Former Vice-President of IS Northwestern Mutual

