INTRODUCTION TO THE CIO ADVISORY BOARD

As Jeanne Ross noted in her Editor's Comments at the beginning of this issue, MISQE has initiated a "CIO Advisory Board." Currently, the Board consists of the 13 members listed. We plan to enlarge the size to roughly 20.

In addition to providing advice to the editors, this Board will comment on previous articles or articles in the current issue. While our authors are practitioner-oriented, we trust that these comments from the Advisory Board will add richness and depth to the articles they discuss.

There is no particular format for these responses. Some Advisory Board members may respond directly to an article, or to pieces of it (as Chris Curran does here). Others may provide their perspectives on the subject of the article without referring directly to it. And there probably will be other formats. Whatever the format, the purpose is to add to readers' knowledge of IT issues.
