Search Engine Economics

Hal R. Varian

University of California at Berkeley, hal@sims.berkeley.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://aisel.aisnet.org/wi2007

Recommended Citation

http://aisel.aisnet.org/wi2007/5

This material is brought to you by the Wirtschaftsinformatik at AIS Electronic Library (AISeL). It has been accepted for inclusion in Wirtschaftsinformatik Proceedings 2007 by an authorized administrator of AIS Electronic Library (AISeL). For more information, please contact elibrary@aisnet.org.
Search engine advertising has become a big business, with the combined revenue of industry leaders Yahoo and Google exceeding $11 billion in 2005. Most all of these ads are sold via auction, with literally billions of these auctions being held per week.

This talk is concerned the economics of search engine ad auctions: how they evolved, how they work, and where they are going. I also speculate on how search engine advertising will affect other marketing efforts.